Gita's great-grandfather, L. Frank Baum and his mother-in-law, Matilda Joslyn Gage expressed their vision and creativity by making unique and noteworthy contributions to society. Gita shares their impact culturally and personally by exploring characteristics and attitudes that have manifested through her family legacy for generations. She explores how we are affected by the actions of our ancestors, and considers how exploring one's family legacy can stimulate and deepen the challenges of healing and reconciliation that are needed to influence the course of our future.
